WELCOME TO THE SPRING 2014 EDITION

CONGRATULATIONS ARE IN ORDER

On Thursday 10 July, the 2014 WIN Television Cradle Coast Tourism Awards were presented in a glittering Awards Night Dinner at the Australian Axeman's Hall of Fame in Latrobe.

Entries were open to all tourism and associated businesses located within, or actively operating in, the Cradle Coast Region. Cradle Coast is situated on the North West and West Coast of Tasmania, comprising the nine local Government areas of Latrobe, Devonport City, Kentish, Central Coast, Burnie City, Waratah-Wynyard, West Coast, Circular Head and King Island Councils in an area which is approximately one third of the total area of Tasmania.

Cradle Coast Regional Tourism Manager, Ian Waller, said he was thrilled with the quality of award entries this year. "The process of entering the awards is a challenging one and can be a little daunting for first time entrants."

We are excited to be awarded the Tour and/or Transport Operators Category. This is a great outcome for Sharp Airlines as a business and represents a significant and important recognition of the service we provide. Our focus has always been to combine the airline services with a contribution to developing tourism on King Island through the promotion of Sharp Airlines holiday packages and community support. The Award is also recognition of the quality of customer service our passengers receive from our staff and agents in Wynyard and King Island who are responsible for the smooth operation of the service.

"this represents a significant and important recognition of the service we provide"

SHOWCASING FABULOUS FLINDERS

Flinders Island Regional Arts, in partnership with Sharp Airlines, showcases four bodies of work each year in the Sharp Terminal at Launceston Airport.

The current exhibition is a delightful peek into the lives of local Flinders Islanders. The photographic exhibition sees creative team, Sammi Gowthorp and Ali George, once again joining forces to share this taste of Island life.

This Summer photographer Ali George spent a month on Flinders (her 3rd visit from her home in FNQ). Collaborating with local creative, Sammi Gowthorp, they travelled the island visiting, eating, drinking, laughing and talking with the locals of Flinders Island. As Sammi and Ali kept pace with the island's most colourful characters, they captured intimate and entertaining moments in the local way of life.

Some scenes may have the ring of familiarity to those who have visited Flinders Island: stunning portraits of weekends on the water at Killiekrankie at the northern end of Flinders; The Lettuce Lady tending her greenhouse tomatoes at the foothills of Mt Strzelecki; a BBQ picnic feast full of laughter at Partridge Farm. These are moments that can be experienced by the Island's visitors on a daily basis. The exhibition also offers the audience glimpses into more revealing moments: the kids from Brymworth Garlic Farm doing their daily chores; the inviting porch of Killara Homestead and Sandro the jeweller and musician turning his compost. These are moments often unseen by even the Islands own residents.

For Sammi and Ali, this exhibition is part of a much larger project. They are planning to produce a cookbook that will celebrate Flinders Island food and lifestyle. Their book will include some of the images in the current exhibition. The Islanders are a resourceful bunch and everyone has their own garden and their own recipes. Both are attended to with love and creativity, not simply from necessity born of living in such a remote region. A lot more goes into making dinner here than in the average Aussie kitchen.

The cookbook will be an artistic and heartfelt collection of recipes contributed by locals and a celebration of the rich island life. It will be a beautiful photographic compilation of real people's recipes, people who live on a little island in the middle of Bass Strait. The book will be available for Christmas 2014.

These are moments that can be experienced by the Island's visitors on a daily basis

FESTIVAL OF KING ISLAND

King Island and written by another recent arrival in Tim Woodburn. The local band tests its repertoire and those who like to jam can step in and out and have their fun. Recently Ben (Gumby) from Benjalu joined in with the locals after a gig in town and totally enjoyed the afternoon. Hopefully more well known artists can visit and enjoy or be inspired by the whole experience and vibe.

The Parenna place project has been happening in league with the advent of the Festival of King Island which has drawn acts to King Island for both the festival proper and, the satellite events that happen regularly throughout the year. The addition of a local radio station on King Island is also encouraging the development of the music scene. As Wades says "the king of rock died in 77, but King Island will soon rock like never before." Amen.

30 January – 1 February 2015
Music, Surf, Food and Fun
Wades Place

Every now and then during your travels you come across a place that speaks to you. It might well be the waves crashing on the rocks or the wind whistling up Bell Hill, the storms crashing around your house or the crunching of the tea tree leaves under the wheels of your 4WD. Alternatively, it could be the opposite, with total quiet and peaceful solitude or, it could just be that you believe you have found your place, at least for a while, on the winding journey of life.

So it seems to be at "Parenna place" the musical love child of Wade Roskam and Pam Rolley. Wade and Pam are only recent arrivals to "the rock" after many years involvement in radio, television and publishing. Now King Island is like any small community, there are many artists in all realms of artistry who revel in the bounty of the Islands many natural and wild inspirations.

Music however, has to be encouraged, nourished and cherished. It needs to be bought out of the holder of the magic - it rarely leaps out of novices and turns into magic overnight. For the average Joe it takes time and persistence to achieve real competency on your instrument. Finding a place where you can nourish the musical beast within, enjoy and grow as a musician and, as a person, is like finding a gift.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I think that, with a small population of 1200 people, I would find so many musicians and singers. Nearly everyone I meet knows a person or family member who plays or sings" says Wade.

The reality is that without support and, a place to play and expand musically, most of these musicians would be more than likely sitting at home having a strum and annoying their neighbours. There is nothing wrong with this, of course. But! At Parenna place, 100 acres of bush solitude and a small band room await. Both have been hosting all forms of local musicians from folk to rock to blues and all points in between. Solo singers/guitarists and talented axe slingers have been drawn out of the woodwork. Bands have been formed and original songs written and coerced into fantastic musical statements.

Once summer returns Wade and Pam have plans to make a new stage. They also plan to fit out a basic recording room where they will start laying down some tracks with an Island band that will record all original music. This music is inspired by, and about,

FESTIVAL HEADLINERS

Kim Churchill

Churchill, an ex-busker, had a booming voice, melody-laced when needed, and busted out some guitar chords and finger-tapping that would have made Steve Vai's jaw drop." – Exclaim! Magazine

Having completed international dates as the hand-picked support act on Billy Bragg's epic Tooth and Nail tour, and headlined his own show at London's Borderline; Australian musical nomad Kim Churchill released his new album Silence/Win in April 2014.

Kim has already accomplished impressive feats in his short time as a professional musician. He is recognised as much internationally as he is in his homeland, having performed headline shows, festivals and supports alike all over the planet. In recent years he has opened for Billy Bragg and Michael Franti, and performed at several notable festivals such as Montreal Jazz, Telluride Blues, SXSW, Winnipeg Folk Festival, and the Byron Bay Blues Festival.

Supporting and working with inspiring artists such as James Morrison, Michael Franti, Luka Bloom, Kim Churchill and Benjalu, Ashleigh has found that strong blend of influences to lay the foundation for a rare and powerful sound.

Somewhere in-between Stevie Nicks and Janis Joplin, Ashleigh is constantly embracing new influences to evolve the sound of a young woman, and one with a message to deliver.

In August 2013 Ashleigh released her latest recording From The Mountains – Part 2 of her 'Trill EP' set (From The City – 2011; From The Mountains – 2013; From The Sea – 2015).

Caravāna Sun

Australian gypsy-ska rockers, Caravāna Sun return to Europe for their third summer, bringing with them their new independent album release, AYA. Launching AYA to a packed house at renowned Australian venue the Oxford Art Factory in November 2013, the band set off on a 46-show national fiesta tour of their home country. The 3 month tour was made up of headlining shows on the east coast of Australia as well as supporting Fat Freddy's Drop on the west coast.

Having long been praised for the raw energy and emotion injected into their live shows, Caravāna Sun purposefully went into the studio aiming to capture the essence of a live performance. AYA was recorded in an old water tank come studio nestled in the mountains close to Australia's famous surfing coast by Govinda Doyle in just over a month. The recording process steered well clear of post-production effects instead relying on the natural space and dynamics of the rooms. This theme was continued right through to the mastering by Grammy award winning William Bowen (Gotye).

Benjalu

"Above all else, we just love touring! Who wouldn't want to head on a never-ending road trip with your mates? Sinking beers, playing tunes and gathering stories you wouldn't tell your future children!" – Gumby, BENJALU.

These guys have played 500 shows over the last few years. They've somehow found time for several trips around Australia, a quick stint in New Caledonia and a tour of Canada with Kim Churchill. A cult following is growing down-under for BENJALU, thanks to their intense work ethic and a flood of Summer festival appearances.

BENJALU's songs are a collaboration of five unique individuals and their diverse musical influences, with some fresh sea spray and sun thrown in, a good dose of melody and a dash of psychedelia. Their live shows always result in a room of sweaty punters, a very happy publican and a host of new friends.

Ashleigh Mannix

Starting as a young musician, this soul songstress has had unique experiences touring around the world to perform at music, sports, charity and fashion gatherings. Along the way Ashleigh has found herself part of a diverse family of musicians who she has been proud to work with on various tours, festivals and collaboration projects.

THE CRAYFISH

"The Crayfish" is a mature-age comic series based on King Island in the early 1950s. The story follows the trials and adventures of Norman Williams, a hearing-impaired, World War Two veteran, still struggling to come to terms with life after the war. By day he labours along with his younger brother Gerald to save the failing family farm. By night he becomes the goggled and helmeted safeguard of the island, The Crayfish.

During the years since the war, King Island has become increasingly targeted for its abundance of natural resources, array of possibly bountiful shipwrecks and other such riches. Soon Norman finds himself coming face to face with a wide variety of international hunters and smugglers. As The Crayfish he will do anything to stop those who wish to destroy the island and its inhabitants' way of life.

The character of The Crayfish is based loosely on Cyril Norman Williams, a man who lived on King Island his whole life and served in World War Two. He also lived on a farm. However, as far as we know he didn't have a second persona who dressed up at night and ran around protecting the island. That's where weaving fact and fiction comes in, that's really what this comic is about.

When we first started to put the comic together it was out of a love for that pre-WW2 era, the technologies of the time, the fashion, the music, the lifestyle. Setting it in the past meant that we had restrictions around what we could and couldn't do, especially with technology but without those restrictions The Crayfish designs and style wouldn't have turned out as well as they have. The idea of setting the comic on an island was also a big decision, but one that meant we could create our own microcosm with the characters and the story.

Using King Island specifically was an easy choice as it already has everything you could want. Beaches, forests, oceans, farmland, mines, shipwrecks, towns and an airfield. The story possibilities are endless. King Island has so many wonderful locations and landmarks, both natural and man-made, that all we had to do was think up the characters and the story to go along with them. Issue One involves the island's famous Cape Wickham lighthouse and in Issue Two, due out November, we take a closer look at the historic Scheelite mine.

We're excited to see where The Crayfish will go on his next exciting adventure!

Cameron R. D. Laird (creator/writer) & Adam Rose (artist)

Cameron R. D. Laird (Creator/Writer) and Adam Rose (Artist) are two young comic creatives hoping to make their mark on the Australian comic scene with a new, self-published, creator-owned, comic series!

Cameron is from Melbourne and has written short stories, short/feature screenplays and award-winning stage plays. His writing is dark, stylised, unusually comedic and emotionally charged. This is his second foray into comic writing and he has loved every minute of it. He can't wait to share The Crayfish with the world.

Adam has previously worked on the Killeroo: Gangwars Anthology and The Crayfish is his second comic. He still can't believe that people may actually pay him to do something he has loved since he was a kid. He is currently based in Brisbane and loves intense, long-winded discussions about movies and comics. He also has a mild obsession with collecting obscure action figures and 80s horror movies.

Spring Racing

FILLIES OFF THE FIELD

I bought my first share in a racehorse at 25. She wasn't the best horse but I followed her throughout the country circuits and I fell in love with country racing.

My designs are drawn from my knowledge of the history of millinery, often incorporating vintage materials.

Annie's unique talent allows her to span the decades having created some stunning bridal party pieces for flower-girls, bridesmaids and, of course, the bride. "My youngest client has been a two-year old flower girl and my oldest client, a lovely lady in her 80s who still adores attending the races wearing a special piece of millinery."

www.annieclifforth.com.au

Annie Clifforth

A Passionate Talent with World Wide Appeal.

"Millinery is an expression of the soul... a creative outlet which builds strength and joy, in the minds and hearts of both the designer and the client."

The Annie Clifforth Millinery label was born in 1999 and has been steadily growing ever since. Annie has formed an outstanding reputation over the past two decades. "My interest in millinery developed after meeting Waultraud Reiner, a world renowned milliner. Her story was so inspiring to me. I then trained at the Melbourne School of Millinery and have also had the privilege of learning from a number of highly talented milliners from both Australia and overseas."

Annie's creations have appeared in many events around Melbourne as well as Country Racing Victoria events, winning awards in millinery and fashion competitions. "A highlight for me was seeing one of my pieces in the top ten of the Myer Millinery Award Competition at Oaks Day last year."

THOUGHTS FROM THE WOMAN BEHIND THE HAT!

Of course I love wearing hats and headpieces! No matter the occasion, I believe wearing a hat completes an outfit - day or night!

Classic, stunning statements of simplicity and style - "I love working with natural fibres and neutral colours, particularly the classic colour combination of black and white. However, I am always aware of the current trends to ensure that I include colour palettes that complement the current season styles. I find it is helpful to start with a theme for the season's range."

And the inspiration? "I find inspiration in a myriad of places: nature, experiences I have had whilst travelling and of course, my family. I love sharing my ideas and designs with them - they are my best supporters and provide wonderful critique."

My designs are drawn from my knowledge of the history of millinery, often incorporating vintage materials collected over the years from friends, family and vintage stores across the world. The flow and feel of the materials used for each piece determines the statement it makes.

I love working with vintage straws, although they can be harder to come by these days. I enjoy working with felts for my winter range and straw-based fabrics for spring collections. I also enjoy beading bridal pieces. I source my materials from all over the world. Recently I have been working with some beautiful straws that I found in Europe a couple of years ago.

Changing trends - "Over the past 20 years, the traditional brimmed hat has become less popular, with a sculptured headpiece becoming a more favoured choice. In the future, I would envisage there being a need for a brimmed hat. However, as a fashion item, hats and headwear will no doubt continue to evolve, as fashion does."

Making a difference - "I feel passionate about supporting women's health, having been involved in the health sector for almost 40 years. It is a privilege to support the industry by making something that will be donated and used to raise funds for the relevant cause. Over the years I have donated my work to events throughout Victoria for various charities, including Warrnambool, Hamilton, Ballarat, Melbourne and Geelong."

In addition to her millinery work, Annie is a Nurse Manager and Counsellor at St Vincent's Hospital Melbourne in the BreastScreen Department.

FAMILY AFFAIR

My beautiful daughter Alexandra helps me every season bringing the final touches to my collection and modelling for me at Oaks Day.

My wonderful son Andrew contributes hours of patience and input before photographing all my headpieces prior to delivery to various stores and clients.

DIRECTOR COUNTRY RACING VICTORIA

A Passion for Ponies, People and Fashion and a lifelong interest in horses.

Thanks to my grandfather, my interest in horses started at an early age. Apparently I saw one of his horses, ran between its legs and I was in love! I had my first pony at the age of 3 and rode for most of my childhood and teenage years until University and work took over.

I bought my first share in a racehorse at 25. She wasn't the best horse but I followed her throughout the country circuits and I fell in love with country racing. I helped form a young members group at the Ballarat Turf Club, The Silks and Saddles Club, which was very successful in attracting young people back to racing. I was then elected onto the Ballarat Turf Club committee and served for 13 years eventually in various executive roles. I still ride and continue to race horses throughout this time.

Director of Country Racing Victoria

Victoria was nominated by the Ballarat Turf Club 3 years ago to join the Country Racing Board. After serving on a racing committee for so long you develop skills and knowledge that can be useful in an advisory role. Being in the industry is a constant education, a process of osmosis - you are always learning.

As a Director you represent all the country clubs at the highest level of the industry. We liaise with Racing Victoria and government bodies to achieve the maximum benefit for country racing. Within our structure we also provide services to enhance the day to day running of the clubs and enable them to provide the best possible product for their stakeholders. It is both challenging and so rewarding to see local clubs strive for excellence.

People Make the Difference

I really love meeting new people at the country clubs, listening to their stories about how and why they became involved in what they do. Most are volunteers, passionate about horses and racing, devoting an enormous amount of time and energy to the success of their club.

Historically, for many towns, the racing club was vital for the social fabric and it is so very important that the clubs maintain a relevance and connection with their community. We see a lot of fundraising, social days, as well as the traditional cups, at most country tracks - I believe the racing club has a vital role to play in helping people connect. That's the

The focus has changed to one of entertainment as opposed to running a race meeting. Theme days are popular and facilities have been upgraded to cater for the entertainment dollar. Along with packaging of dining and group events, a new market for racing has been created, emerging as a competitive force. Changes in occupational health and safety have improved the conditions of all those associated with racing and increased public safety.

Fashions On the Field, once an adjunct to Cup Days, is now a major focus. Both men and women compete at a very high standard with the level of prizes and sponsorship reflecting the increased interest.

Challenges

There are always many challenges to be considered. Competition for the discretionary dollar and consumer attention will increase dramatically. Consumers have less down time than ever before and want a quality experience. Racing must ensure it remains a mainstream sport and business.

Punters have more choice, about who to bet with, than ever before. TAB and on course bookmakers have been the traditional ways to bet and the industry has benefited greatly from the higher returns from the TAB. Corporate bookmakers are now part and parcel of racing and, whilst doing a good job of promoting racing, the industries return from their betting is much lower.

In the future, there will be increased focus on online sales. Providing customers with a comprehensive, yet easy online experience, ensures they can obtain all necessary information and pre purchase tickets to every feature country racing event. Therefore, advertising campaigns will concentrate almost entirely in the on line space.

We must look for more non racing revenue streams to assist. One of our major objectives, as an industry, is to create better returns for participants by increasing prize money. The industry is made up of people who need to win races for income.

CRV already owns a 50% share of two hotels with the profits used to create better opportunities for clubs and ultimately better returns will follow. We will continue to look to build upon that great foundation.

As a lover of fashion

My first experience of fashion at the races was when I was 16 - I wagged school, dressed up in my finest Princess Diana outfit and won Teenager of the Day at the Ballarat Cup!

Each decade produces a special look and not all of them favourable! Fashion went through a stage where women were wearing more cocktail style outfits, which were great for night time but unforgiving during the day. Luckily the trend has changed and women are dressing in a more elegant style. What I have noticed, during my time in country racing, is that the standard of fashion has been taken to an extremely high level and that most girls source their outfits locally.

You and Your Hats - Your association with Annie Clifforth

Annie has great talent as a milliner - she is a lovely person and a friend. She has that wonderful skill of reading her clients and dressing them accordingly. I can ring her, describe my outfit and colour and we are away. Her hats are timeless, I have too many and they have lasted me for years. The beauty of Annie's hats is that you put them on and go - for a busy person on race day that is a must.

HARRODS OF HAMILTON

London has Harrods, Paris has Bon Marche and New York Dean and DeLuca. Darriwill Farm is rapidly putting Hamilton on the world gourmet scene with the recent expansion and refit of its flagship Hamilton store.

In current economic times where a lot of retail stores are closing their doors, the highly successful Darriwill Farm business in Hamilton has chosen the path of further expansion.

First opening in Hamilton over 10 years ago as a Gourmet Food & Gift business, the store's early expansions included a wine merchant. This was followed a few years later with an award winning 100 seat café and restaurant and in recent years a full Delicatessen.

With the closing of the local Red Cross store in December and with the support of local landlords Richard Walter and Leighton Wraith, Darriwill Farm took on the additional 300 square premises and has made a substantial investment in fitting out the old store into a world class retail offering.

Retail Manager Jacinta Hedley said "We are very excited to have available the additional space which has allowed us to increase substantially the range of kitchen wares and electrical appliances from some of the world's leading brands" The store also includes a new T2 concept area and Julius Meinl European Coffee experience.

A full demonstration kitchen has also been built into the new space where customers can try and test products before they purchase, as well as providing the perfect set up to conduct cooking classes.

The current retail space has also been fully renovated to include a new fresh and ready to go food concept to service customers looking for a takeaway food option as well as take home gourmet curries, soups, salads and cakes.

Manager and leading local Chef John Hedley said "Our continued success would not be possible without the enormous support we receive from our loyal local customers, businesses and community organisations. We are committed to building a world class specialty retail and gourmet food business in Hamilton."

THE WONDERS OF WYNYARD & SURROUNDS AWAIT

Surprisingly close. Surprisingly beautiful.

Take a cue from nature – renew yourself this Spring.

Traditionally Springtime means new life, colour and excitement and you'll be surrounded by all three when you visit Wynyard and surrounds this Spring.

With a month full of markets and festivities, spectacular and unique scenery and, the chance to relax, unwind and recharge your batteries, Wynyard and surrounding townships offer everything you need to awaken your senses and reinvigorate your soul.

Wynyard is renowned for spectacular Springtime tulip displays. Extending as far as the eye can see, like giant floral catwalks on the imposing volcanic plug known as Table Cape, as well as throughout the gardens and streetscapes of the township. These displays are the backdrop and inspiration for the Bloomin' Tulip Festival held in October each year.

If you can take your eyes off the breathtaking floral extravaganza for just a moment, a glance to the horizon will reveal the iconic Table Cape Lighthouse. Drive to the lighthouse, or park at the lookout and take the walking track along the rugged cliff face. With the crashing ocean below and jaw dropping views as far as the eye can see, this short and gentle walk will remind you how good it feels to be alive.

Interpretive signage tells the history of the lighthouse, constructed in the 1880's, and the associated development of a community based around its existence. Extracts from the Assistant Lighthouse Keepers' Diary (1895) also give a vivid insight into the challenges of life at the time.

Experience nature's kaleidoscopes of colour as the tulip crops mature across the fields of table cape. It's impossible to have a bad day when it begins with such beauty

The lighthouse was entered onto the Tasmanian Heritage Register in 1998, in recognition of its association with the maritime history of Tasmania and the unique design attributes of the imposing Victorian structure.

EXPLORATION THAT ANYONE CAN ENJOY – ROCKY CAPE NATIONAL PARK

Spring is also the perfect time to experience the unique flora and fauna of the Rocky Cape National Park. Full of surprises – from big views across Bass Strait to the bright wildflowers of its coastal heathlands - this national park is small in scale but big on natural and cultural attractions.

Just 15 minutes by car from Wynyard, you don't have to be super fit to enjoy nature's gifts at Rocky Cape. A variety of walks ranging from less than 20 minutes to a full day, cater to all ages and fitness levels. These take in Aboriginal rock shelters and caves, scenic hills full of wildflowers and birds and tranquil beaches, bays and rocky headlands.

Rocky Cape National Park is heavily populated with native wildlife – including pademelons (wallabies), Bennetts wallabies, Eastern Grey Kangaroos, Tasmanian Devils, Eastern Barred Bandicoots, echidnas, spotted quolls, ringtail possums and brushtail possums.

In spring and summer visitors can see the hundreds of different plant species in flower including over 40 species of orchid (including the Paterson's Spider Orchid which is listed as a threatened species) and the saw-toothed banksia (Banksia serrata) which is native only to this region. The Xanthorrhoea plant, with its grass-like skirt and tall flower spike, is also a striking presence throughout the park.

Look out for the colourful seaweed and starfish that occupy the pretty rock pools along the coast. Swimming, fishing, boating are also popular activities in the area.

Sisters Beach is a small community located within the Rocky Cape National Park and is situated on the old horse trail known as the Postman's Track that once formed the only connection between Emu Bay Van Diemen's Land outpost of Stanley.

With over three kilometres of pristine white sandy beach, this peaceful, unspoiled retreat is also home to an abundance of native bird and wildlife.

The easy water access from the main car park and the boat ramp makes boating, fishing, swimming and diving popular pastimes with the locals. Sisters Beach is also home to plenty of marine life, with rockpools filled with colourful starfish and common sightings of dolphins, whales and seals, particularly as the waters begin to warm at the end of Spring. What better way to unwind than to pack a picnic full of gourmet Tasmanian food and wine and take a stroll along this pristine stretch of coastal paradise?

BLOOMIN' TULIPS - THE FESTIVAL THAT CELEBRATES THE SEASON

When planning your trip to Wynyard and surrounds, remember that the springtime festivities culminate on the 11th October with the Bloomin' Tulip Festival. A full day of family fun activities, entertainment for young and old, local producers offering fine local fare, and all the colour and excitement of a traditional community celebration. The night ends with a bang – with spectacular fireworks over the Inglis River.

The Table Cape Tulip Farm – a unique opportunity to tip toe through the tulips.

September 27 to October 17 Showcasing stunning floral arrangements and artworks. Locally grown bulbs and flowers available for purchase.

IMAGINE YOURSELF...

- Tiptoeing through the acres of springtime tulips on Table Cape - a volcanic plug with breathtaking coastal and farmland vistas. If it's possible to be TOO beautiful – this comes close.
- Enjoying a feast of fine Tasmanian wine, food and entertainment as you bury your toes in pure white sand and watch dolphins playing under the sunset. Relax, hold hands and smile.
- Unearthing locally made treasures at one of our many art and craft markets or at the Bloomin' Tulips Festival held each spring.

STAY AN EXTRA NIGHT AND...

Take a day trip to Stanley and the Nut...cruise west along the spectacular coastline from Table Cape, marvelling at the rich, colourful fields of tulips and other flowering crops. Call in for a coffee at Boat Harbour Beach and drink in some more visual perfection. Take a short detour to Dip Falls and the Big Tree, and whilst there stop for a moment - reflect on the diversity and beauty of what you have just seen in a mornings leisurely road trip. Drive on to Stanley and climb the world famous Nut (or take the chairlift if you are feeling adventurous), enjoy a seafood lunch and visit Historic Highfield House. Head back home to your Wynyard base and over a hearty pub meal share your favourite memories from a day you will never forget.

OR

During October enjoy one of the many cultural experiences on offer during the Burnie Shines Festival. Take in a concert, enjoy an art exhibition, or if you are feeling really energetic – enter Australia's premier road race, the Burnie Ten!
