The Sharp Files

A Cadet Perspective

NEW ELITE SIMULATOR FOR SHARPCADET ELITE PILOT TRAINING

Sharp Airlines is at the forefront of pilot training in Australia. We pride ourselves on the quality of training we deliver to our cadets and the modern equipment on which they hone their skills.

SharpCadet is the longest-running cadet course in Australia with more than 23 years' successful pilot training. Around 85% of cadets find employment before or after cadetship completion and we have the lowest instructor-trainee ratios in Australia (1:5).

SharpCadet Bernard Schiffel is one of many to benefit from our most recent training acquisition - the Elite iGate S623 simulator.

The Elite iGate S623 simulator is the first of its kind in Australia to be fitted with dynamic control loading which provides feedback to the pilot on many factors such as airspeed and altitude.

"The Elite iGate S623 allows us to easily switch between the Cessna 172, Piper Seneca and the King Air B200 simulations. Each configuration allows cadets in the commercial, instrument rating and multi-crew conversion stages to practice procedures in the relevant aircraft. The aircraft panels combined with the Lockheed Martin Prepar3D visuals enable a realistic simulation of scenarios encountered during flight," he said.

Bernard said cadets who have used the simulator found the graphics helped them to learn how to operate in and around controlled airspace.

"A simulation experience in the King Air B200 not only helps to introduce the multi-crew environment, but also familiarises operation of a high performance twin turbine aircraft prior to flying the Metroliner. A Garmin GNS430 is fitted to each aircraft, enhancing the realistic operation of aircraft systems. The software gives instructors control over every aspect, whether it be the weather conditions or the aircraft's state," he said.

ALL ABOARD FOR A REGAL FESTIVAL ON KING ISLAND

King Island is well known for its rugged coastline, shipwrecks and abundance of gourmet produce such as cheese, beef, crayfish and abalone. But did you know that each year it is also home to a 50 metre long water slide built amongst the scenic coastal hills?

The second Festival of King Island – or FOKI to the locals - will take place from 31 January to 2 February 2014, and the water slide will be just one of the many attractions.

If you can imagine a beautiful natural amphitheatre with the sun setting on Currie Harbour as a backdrop, a laid-back atmosphere with plenty of room to move and a continual procession across stage of quality entertainment, then you can imagine FOKI. Add in some visiting and local musicians, a raft race, a pie-eating contest as well as some sumo wrestling and you have a festival experience you will remember for years to come.

A market of local crafts and foods from popcorn to jewellery will be held on site each afternoon of the festival weekend. The morning break gives visitors the opportunity to explore the island and enjoy the many wonderful local attractions.

You can start each day surfing, diving, fishing, horse trail riding, beach combing and bird spotting. You can also climb a lighthouse or tempt your taste buds with some cheese tasting or local produce.

Headline acts this year will be Kim Churchill and Benjalu. Kim has toured the world and released a fantastic acoustic and roots CD and videos which were shot on locations around King Island during his last visit. Cameron Oates a talented multi-instrumentalist from Skye, Victoria is returning after wowing the crowd last year.

A range of local talent will also be on display, with acts as diverse as troubadour singers, a covers duo, guitarists and a band playing original compositions all taking their turn on the stage.

KING ISLAND FESTIVAL

Up Close

LOCATION: Currie Club

DATE AND TIME: Friday 31st Jan – Festival warm up evening

LOCATION: Currie Harbour

DATE AND TIME: Saturday 1 and Sunday 2 February in the afternoon and evening

COST: Free entry

MORE INFORMATION:
www.facebook.com/FestivalOfKingIsland

Before the festival kicks-off on Saturday, visitors will also be able to indulge themselves with a visit to one the King Island racing club's meetings. This is where the "surf meets the turf" and believe me the locals love their horse racing and the Australian public love the charm and down to earth nature of the locals and the magnificent course. You get a real taste of country racing held by one of Australia's oldest racing clubs on one of Australia's oldest courses. The King Island Racing Club is now 117 years old, and boasts a dual code programme; with a mix of gallopers and pacers which both race on the one mile grass track.

If you love your horses and would like to take things at a slower pace, there is probably no better way to discover King Island than to take a horse ride with King Island Trail Rides. The friendly owners will take you on a voyage along the pristine and spectacular coastline. Rides range from 1 hour to 3 day camp out adventures. This is a great idea for quality time with well trained horses for all levels of riders. As you can see a long weekend on King Island for the festival will not only feature music, arts and crafts but also sightseeing, surfing, beach combing, horse riding, horse racing, free cheese tasting (at the venerable King Island Dairies) as well as just taking the chance to relax and unwind on this unpoilt gem in the Bass Strait.

KING ISLAND

Naracoopa is a small coastal village only 20 kilometers from King Island Airport. Residents will tell you that it is variously known as the sunshine coast or the King Island Riviera and it's hard to disagree as your car first crests the hill into the village. The sight of this beautiful blue stretch of Bass Strait with Nine Mile Beach disappearing into the distance will stick fast in your mind's eye and is a memory that draws visitors back time and again.

Not a lot happens in Naracoopa and that's pretty much the point. Waves lap against the shore, birds pass across the wide horizon, local kids fossick for shells and if the wind is blowing in the right direction you might hear the zip of a fishing reel as squid, salmon, flathead or shark are pulled onto the 200m long jetty.

Joris and Maria Weitjens moved to King Island from Holland in 1963 to milk cows "up north". After almost a quarter of a century dedicated to raising their family and supplying famous King Island milk, they moved the short distance to Naracoopa where they purchased an 80 acre property known as Rocky Glen.

King Island's lush, green and flat pasture is about as far removed from an Alpine scene as you can imagine which is why it is something of a surprise to find Rocky Glen's architecture has a distinct Swiss chalet feel to it. It turns out that the property was built in the 1930's by a local man, Charlie Button, and the growing Weitjens family added the gabled roofs and decorative weatherboard as they built on to the original property.

If you have no luck with the rod and reel then Joris and Maria's daughter, Heidi, serves take-away fish and chips for those wanting to languish on the beach and soak up the last rays on a Friday evening. More commonly though, visitors and locals alike prefer to dine at Rocky Glen's excellent restaurant where Heidi brings all her past experience as an events manager into play by making her guests feel welcome and relaxed while Dwayne, the Executive Chef, strives to prepare the best seasonal produce King Island has to offer.

These days Joris and Maria have handed over the front of house duties to Heidi as they concentrate on other passions which in Joris' case centres on encouraging his vegetables to grow in the large hot house behind the property. Joris is a firm believer in the efficacy of playing music to his vegetables but just to be sure he also has an armchair out there so he can keep an eye on their progress. The fruits of these labours enhance each dish brought to the table be it fish from the sea, beef from the paddock or crayfish from the pot as Heidi introduces all her guests to the best King Island produce available at the time of their stay.

Once sated, diners can take a moonlit stroll along the nearby Lovers Lane or if they're not staying in one of Rocky Glen Retreat's charming chalets they can head back along the esplanade to one of the five other accommodation providers in this peaceful village. Baudins, named after the French explorer who nearly claimed the island for the French in 1802, has a bar and several cabins while towards the north end of the settlement, bird watchers love staying with local twitchers John and Rhonda at A Slice of Paradise.

It would be hard to describe the pace of life in King Island's main township of Currie as hectic but if you really want to get away from it all then Naracoopa operates at a decidedly different pace and the famously warm welcome from Heidi at Rocky Glen Retreat is certain to make you feel like you've come home.

Classical style at Chatsworth House

The western district of Victoria is renowned for rolling green hills, meticulously landscaped heritage gardens and historic homesteads to rival the country houses of England.

Chatsworth House, overlooking the Hopkins River, is no exception. A bluestone mansion with ironwork verandahs and spacious landscaped gardens, it was built in 1858-59 for pioneer pastoralist John Moffat.

Chatsworth House is a fine example of the conservative classical style mansion and a notable work of James Henry Fox, a celebrated Hamilton based architect and designer of Victoria's most magnificent mansion 'Werribee Park' in 1873-78.

STUNNING WEDDING BACKDROP

A homestead long admired by royalty and dignitaries, Chatsworth House provides the perfect venue for weddings and other functions. Whether you choose an intimate gathering or a lavish affair, be assured your special day will be totally unique and unforgettable.

The historic gardens of Chatsworth House are a perfect setting for a romantic celebration. The Rose Garden, fountains, secluded courtyards and lawns ensure an elegant and stylish setting with the homestead as your backdrop.

Nature lovers may choose an ancient red gum as the site to take their vows. The beautiful grounds can be used for stunning photographs while your guests are treated to a sophisticated pre-dinner cocktail function on the homestead verandah and lawns.

Boutique accommodation is available for up to 50 guests in rustic bluestone apartments and three charming country cottages. All accommodation is self-catering (although catering can be arranged) and offers the opportunity to gather privately with family and friends prior to your wedding or to farewell your guests the next morning with a barbeque brunch.

THE LONGROOM

The substantial bluestone building now known as the Longroom, was once the mens' quarters on the original Cobb & Co route and the stables that run parallel to them have been well maintained and were completed in 1867. The complex also originally included a school and church. The Longroom was renovated by the current owners in 2002 and then completed in 2006, when the remaining quarters at the western end of the building were converted to accommodation.

The baronial bluestone Longroom Reception Hall is only a short stroll from the homestead and can accommodate up to 120 seated guests, including a private sitting room. In summer or in winter, with the fire blazing, the atmosphere is electric.

HISTORIC HERITAGE GARDENS

Chatsworth House gardens were designed by the noted garden designer Edward La Trobe Bateman in 1867. Bateman, a cousin of Charles Joseph La Trobe, Superintendent of the colony, was one of Victoria's first garden designers. Bateman designed more than 15 public and private gardens in Victoria, including plans for the Fitzroy and Carlton gardens, Melbourne University private gardens, Heronswood and Barragunda on the Mornington Peninsula, and in the Western district at Wooriwyrite and Chatsworth.

The garden is entered through a planting of Monterey Pines and is laid out within a perimeter planting of mainly conifers. A feature of the garden is a curved cypress hedge which encloses the garden on the east side. The planting makes extensive use of conifers, - pines, cypress and cedars - oaks and figs, blue gums and remnant river red gums as specimen trees and in stands to create a 'picturesque' arrangement of trees in a parkland setting.

MOUNTAINS IN THE SEA

Lonely remnants of Bass Strait's ice age land bridge, dotting the sea all around; cradles of life for fish, dolphins, seals, gannets, shearwaters, pelicans; warm and welcoming in gentle summer breezes, wild and wonderful when the westerlies roar - Flinders is surrounded by a scattering of islands, ancient hilltops and peaks left high and dry when the glaciers melted.

STRZELECKI AND SETTLEMENTS

Strzelecki's sky-piercing granite crags, towering beyond bright half-moon beaches; purple irises nodding around Wybalenna's red brick chapel, full of poignant memories; peaks and high places, with views across farmlands, coastlines and the blue shifting sea - south-west Flinders combines many of the island's varied qualities.

Essendon Airport growth planned

FROM MOONEY VALLEY LEADER

A car dealership, mall, hotel and hospital feature in Essendon Airport's five-year master plan, which chief executive Chris Cowan says will deliver more than extra flights.

He said aviation operations remained the facility's "key obligation", but it would focus on creating an activity centre between Melbourne Airport and the city.

The master plan also flagged the possibility of establishing a hospital on-site to complement existing emergency services. Mr Cowan said they'd had multiple inquiries from hospital operators, which could offer a daytime or full service as a new development or in one of the existing buildings.

BEAUFORT NORTH AND WIRRAWAY NORTH PRECINCT

AutoCentro is "definitely" Melbourne's best motor vehicle outlet strip, traders say, and plans are afoot for it to double.

Ian Oats, sales manager of Airport Toyota, said Auto Centro was "customer-friendly".

"It has made it easier for customers to shop around as they can walk across the road into other dealerships," Mr Oats said.

Nine dealerships offer 12 brands, but the airport expects to add up to 10 more dealerships within the next five years.

ENGLISH STREET PRECINCT

A hotel could be built at Essendon Airport within five years to meet demand for conference space in the north-western region. The 150-room hotel has been proposed for the English St Precinct, with associated conference and food and beverage facilities.

Other proposals for the precinct include the refurbishment of heritage buildings and hangars for office or retail use and 10,000sqm of new commercial floor space with car parking. The airport's first long-term car park, with up to 150 spaces, has been proposed for miners who use fly-in and flyout operations.

HART PRECINCT

Essendon Airport hopes to build a new road within five years for commercial development in the eastern precinct. The Hart Precinct is partly landlocked by both airport runways and only accessible through airside roads or private gates from Strathmore.

About 50,000sqm would be available for light industrial uses, such as warehouses, offices, vehicle storage and hangars.

BULLA PRECINCT

More shops and car parking have been flagged for Essendon Fields' retail precinct over the next five years. Up to 15,000 sqm of retail development and additional car spaces have been proposed. Direct Factory Outlet and Homemaker Hub were developed between 2004 and 2007 and now occupy 60,000 sqm of space.
